Week 6 – Whine, Whine, Whine . . .

It's another year of whine, whine, whining by the WV Coal Association.

"Our laws are more stringent than federal OSM regulations," they whine. "We can't compete with Kentucky," they whine. Read these statements out loud with a real high pitch nasal twang to complete this pathetic picture. Every year it's the same old song.

This week the industry proposed that the legislature totally revamp the state's environmental regulatory program for mining coal (SB 480 and HB 2956). They are asking the legislature to require that DEP potentially throw out all current state mining regulations and adopt in their place WEAKER regulations established as minimum program standards by the federal Office of Surface Mining.

They are like a bunch of hypochondriacs in denial: the coal market is down, so the industry must be sick and it can't possibly be industry that is causing the problem!

This is sheer madness. First of all, the current WV regulatory program for coal IS – I repeat – IS an OSM approved program! Secondly, WV regulations and permitting are NOT responsible for a slow-down in coal production and a loss of jobs in the coalfields! It's the market, stupid!! The industry has accumulated large stockpiles of coal and glutted their own market!

I guess their whine sounded bad to them as well, because just hours after making their presentation Wednesday to a senate committee the press was quoting Coal Association lobbyist Chris Hamilton as saying that their proposal had "gone too far."

Good grief! They need to quit whining . . . and go out and feed the birds.

Water Protection – In the Pipeline?

By Rick Eades

Numerous folks took action this week that may reduce the likelihood of European giants in the global water business from potentially gobbling up precious West Virginia natural resources – and possibly profiting at our expense like no entity in our state's history.

The feeding frenzy on global water sales of possible European Enron-clones, and the potential that they could further target our water, appears to be getting addressed by the 2003 Legislature. FYI, Suez (French), Vivendi (French), and RWE/Thames (German) who just bought WV-American Water reportedly have water holdings in respectively 130, 110, and 44 countries already. Wow!

In no particular order, all of the following actions have occurred...

Tremendous and timely responsiveness from the WV Attorney General and Public Service Commission to informational requests, produced numerous hard copy documents that we provided to Legislators this week showing in black and white that:

- WEST VIRGINIA HAS NO WATER QUANTITY LAWS, joining postage stamp Rhode Island as the only states east of the Mississippi in this potentially horrifying distinction;
- The Bush Administration will decide by March 31, 2003 whether to approve a European Union request that the United States hereafter offers our water supplies as a "service" under international treaties (which could trump our ability to pass water laws in the future, indicates the critical timeline,

Water Protection ~ In The Pipeline?

and could favor French and German companies just when Bush needs their support in Iraq!!); and,

- Documents that offer WV AG concerns, thinking, and background, some already provided to Legislative leadership.

In the Senate, sincere credit is due to Senators John Unger and Brooks McCabe. They've proactively drafted two resolutions on the Senate side that could lead to a comprehensive water policy or water protection law that is sorely missing in West By God.

The Senate resolutions would prompt an interim study, hopefully with a fully dedicated interim committee and possibly a task force, to identify our needs and ways to protect this critical resource. Provisions might be considered that would put a moratorium on water sales to international interests until this study is complete.

NEWSFLASH! FRIDAY, SENATE WATER RESOLUTION SCR 27 INTRODUCED! 21 SENATE CO-SPONSORS!

Extremely responsive on the House side, Majority Leader Rick Staton and Judiciary Chairman Jon Amores supported a meeting this week called by Senator Unger, and provided House legal counsel to examine options.

Credit big-time (as previously noted in 2 earlier GREEN stories) to the Attorney General's Office and the rapid learning curve they went through during the sale of WV-American Water to RWE/Thames. The AG has not only helped develop more protective "contract" language on that sale, but recognized the immense value of West Virginia's water resources and has offered appropriate communications to the Legislature.

A representative of the Attorney General's office was asked by Senator Unger to provide background, as well as any straightforward code that could possibly be modified without offending any West Virginia interest group – yet still offer a possibility of getting something on the books right away.

It's too premature to tell, but not inconceivable that some very basic statement of the waters of West Virginia being protected for the good of our citizens and business interests and kept away from international treaty nightmares could evolve this session.

Important guidance has also arrived from some key agency or regulatory guests at the request of Senator Unger. A DEP representative offered clear legal overviews of basic rationale that would support water law development.

Likewise, the Public Service Commission Consumer Advocate Billy Jack Gregg has substantial knowledge of the issues involved with water utilities. He not only testified before Senate Finance early this year about the complete absence of WV water quantity laws, but is very respected at the Legislature and has graciously offered to respond to Senator Unger or the House as these efforts develop.

It would be totally remiss if I failed to mention the ultimate clearinghouse on water issues over the past 4 years, Vivian Stockman of OVEC. She has scoured thousands of documents and forwarded many reference sources that characterize water supply crises globally and international treaty issues that now are being related to West Virginia's most prized resource of the 21st century.

Of note, the last day to introduce bills is Monday for Senate, and Friday for House.

We hope nothing derails the sincere efforts now underway at the Legislature to do the right thing, and protect WV water for our future citizen and economic interests.

Happy St. Valentine's Day!!

We need you now, more than ever, to be our WVEC Valentine. We need you now, more than ever, to send us a financial contribution as your WVEC Valentine's Day "love offering."

WVEC was ambitious in our lobbying goals this year. We have assembled an extremely talented lobby team, and they are working hard representing your concerns to the legislature. Now we simply have to make sure we can fulfill our financial commitments to these dedicated team members.

So, if you have not done so, why not send us a Valentine and renew your WVEC membership? And if you've already renewed, why not consider making an extra contribution as your Valentine present to WVEC (hugs and kisses are accepted as well).

Legislature Is Turned On About "Turn It Off"

By Allan Tweddle, allantweddle@bigplanet.com

HB 2961—modeled after our “Turn It Off” initiative for school busses—was introduced this week with Delegate Perry (Fayette) as lead sponsor, and delegates Beach (Monongalia), Shaver (Preston) and Fleischauer (Monongalia) as co-sponsors.

As I write this, Senators Caldwell and Oliverio have forwarded a Senate version to Bill Drafting. Senators Hunter and Sprouse (Senate Minority Leader) are co-sponsors, so the Senate bill will be bi-partisan.

The one difference between the Senate and House bills is that the Senate version sets the lower temperature limit for “turning it off” at 20 degrees, as we recommended (and as follows CT law and ME Policy). The House raised the temperature to 40 degrees. We hope that this minor difference will be resolved, and we will get passage. After all, it’s a lot colder in ME, VT, NH, MA, CT and Ontario where these practices are now working.

Our bill is crafted after CT’s law, but the House and Senate bills BOTH leave off the penalties that CT lawmakers felt were important for enforcement. We would be discouraged by a lack of enforcement, except that I have learned that the voluntary program in ME was embraced by over 70% of the bus drivers, who had reported high incidence of headaches from driving these diesel buses. (ME DEP is sending us materials to give to legislators next week, when the committees need to move the bills.)

Because these WV bills do not cost the State anything, and they have the potential for saving costs in the school system, we do not see much opposition ...yet!

In Thursday’s Charleston Gazette, a front page article described how West Virginia has the highest cost for school buses in the nation...6% of the total budget in education is spent on transportation. Our focus in our “Turn it Off” campaign is a way to save money, and while we are at it, save the lungs of bus drivers and children.

I am excited about these bills. We are not there yet, and must keep them moving to the floor for passage. For me personally, it is a little part of a dream come true.

For those of you who know me, I have dedicated these “later years” of my life to bringing my 40 years of dealing with air quality improvements as an engineer to the betterment of the environment of West Virginia and the country. It’s ironic to me that those 40 years started when I graduated at age 29 from Michigan in 1961. For you numerologists, the House bill is 2961.

Many others have helped in this effort. Special credit and thanks for the original inspiration should go to Marcia Leitch of the West Virginia Interfaith Global Climate Change Committee (WVIGCCC) who, with the technical support of the Union of Concerned Scientists, put us in touch with those States that are well along in a “No Idling” program for all vehicles, State and private—to reduce costs, reduce deadly exposure to toxic fumes of gasoline and diesel, and reduce GHG’s. Marcia and the WVIGCCC are seeking funds from foundations to help educate the children in our schools and involve them in watching and measuring the results in WV.

We need you to call your delegate and senator to encourage passage. For now, let’s stop unnecessary idling, and keep turned on about “Turn It OFF”!

All You Need Is Love....

By Chuck Wyrstok

(Whom we’ve dubbed “WVEC Guru of Love”)

For Valentine’s Day, let us just for a moment reflect on the “love thang”, as a good friend of mine calls it. She calls it that with an air of dismissal...a “been there, done that” smirk that reveals past disappointments and future probabilities. Always the romantic, I offer comfort and inept comments like “well, that just means the odds are even better of something great working out”. No response from her. Just a deadpan look. A look of determined resignation. Love’s a bitch, I feel like saying, but decide not to.

For single persons in these times of tension, terrorism, war, uncertainty, and friggin’ Code Orange alerts, it is indeed not fertile ground for hope. Love is often eclipsed by worries about survival, jobs, a general sense of despair and the incursion of technology....picture the warm glow of gazing into your dinner date’s eyes as her cell phone goes off. It’s her broker (jeez! her BROKER?), there’s a problem..... and the spell is broken.

My dog loves me though, unconditionally. (But then, she loves everyone unconditionally.) She seems to easily locate the soul of a person through a pure primitive instinct. I wonder how that would work on the smarmy, apparently soulless coal lobbyists slithering around the Capitol. The E-Team might be able to utilize her as a soul-sniffing dog, much like a “drug dog”. Then, again, the beady eyes of those dudes would probably bring on a low growl.

In a broader sense, truth be known, love is more important than ever. Love...smiling, warmth, trusting, common decency, charity, sisterhood, brotherhood...these things need to be clutched to the heart even stronger in times of darkness. From love there is strength and purpose. It’s the cosmic glue in the human soup. It’s the reason to fight for Mother Earth.

Don’t discount it. Love is all there is. Happy Valentines Day everyone.

"Turn It Off" Is On

By Rick Eades

A really good bill's fate rests largely in your hands. Dial the phone (1-877-565-3447 for any legislative numbers), and call members of House and Senate Education Committees and encourage them to move HB 2961 (or the Senate companion currently being drafted).

Special thanks are in order to House Education Chairman Mezzatesta (340-3265) and House Majority Leader Staton (340-3220).

They took our draft legislation through legislative bill drafting and introduced a bill in four business days (!) to turn off school buses when they're not moving. Senator Caldwell and others are equally excited to sponsor the bill on the Senate side.

This bill needs to pass this session, as a range of support has been offered from the State School Board, School Board Association, Association of Counties, County Commissioners, WV Education Association, and the faith based organizations who Allan Tweddle has worked this issue with long before the session.

HB 2961:

- saves money in school bus transportation costs (WV reportedly spends more per student than any state in the US),
- reduces fuel consumption and diesel emissions,
- protects our kids' health, and,
- offers a valuable lesson - energy conservation, economic sanity, and kid's health go hand in hand.

Bottle Bill Introduced: HB 2926!

By Linda Mallet, linda@wvcag.org

On Monday, the WV Container Recycling and Litter Control Act, HB 2926 was introduced in the House of Delegates. Many thanks to the bill's sponsors: Delegates Doyle, Frich, Canterbury, Houston, Brown, Poling and Webster. And many thanks to Les Shoemaker, WV Farm Bureau lobbyist, whose organization has made the bottle bill one of its legislative priorities.

The bill has been double-referenced to the House Judiciary and Finance Committees. Now is the perfect time to contact your delegates and ask them to support a WV Bottle Bill!

WV-CAG and the WV-Farm Bureau will hold a press conference at 1 PM on Monday, February 17 at the state Capitol on Farm Bureau Day in the House Minority Conference Room (Room 252).

To sign our on-line petition, and to learn more about the bottle bill, please visit www.wvcag.org. It takes just a minute!

Some DEP Bills Move, Some Down the Tubes?

By Rick Eades

House Judiciary passed three DEP bills to the House Floor, where they will hopefully pass on to the Senate without amendment.

- HB 2880 increases underground storage tank fees from $25 to $75 per year to fund a program rightfully focused on prevention and early detection of leaks.
- HB 2881 changes WV law to address the federal "Rahall Amendment," a change required by the US Office of Surface Mining to eliminate a provision in one section of law that exists elsewhere regarding bond releases.
- HB 2882 eliminates use of "unjust hardship" in WV mining laws, and prevents such industry claims in Surface Mine Board appeals to avoid paying penalties.

Some other good draft laws, offered early to the Legislature by DEP but never introduced, are apparently going nowhere, including:

- Strict liability for groundwater contamination, and
- Cost recovery mechanisms for environmental damages from out of state impacts on WV waters, where our Tug Fork, Big Sandy, and Ohio Rivers are at risk. Of note, we appear to be screwed by federal law restrictions that prevent us from recovering natural resource damages from disasters like Kentucky's Massey/Martin County Coal Company in 2000. That disaster dumped roughly 300 million gallons of coal slurry into rivers and ultimately impacted our waters.

What was coined as the "Sustainable Business" bill appears to have died. This legislation was more complex and better than Underwood DEP attempts to hatch an "Environmental Excellence Award" that was no more than an industry kissing booth.

Timely written comments from Jim Kotcon helped identify several discrete ways that industry might manipulate this year's proposed program, and the bill never got introduced. This legislation was a better attempt by DEP to identify the best performers and raise the environmental compliance bar. Even with Delegate Kevin Craig's interest in a possible interim study, meeting the program's intended purpose without opening the door to industry fudge will be very dicey.

What's Up With Clean Elections Bill?

By John Taylor

Not much. Not much at all, unfortunately. We reported earlier in these pages that SB 158 and HB 2527 (West Virginia Clean Elections Bill) are in the hands of "Elections Sub-Committees" of the Judiciary Committees of both houses.

The House Elections Sub-Committee has not met to discuss the Bill. We wish we could fill this page with a report of their discussions. Maybe next time.

The Senate Elections Sub-Committee met Wednesday, 12 February 2003 and discussed S.B. 158 for less than an hour. Senator Jenkins (D-Cabell), a co-sponsor of the Bill opined that it is better than the Fair Campaign Practices Code of 1995. Wva Code 3-1B-1, et seq. He said the Clean Elections Bill is better than the Code because, based on the experiences of Maine and Arizona voters and candidates, the "Clean" process results in substantially increased voter and candidate participation in the process. Increased participation was one of the main goals of the Fair Campaign Code, but it is an evident fact that that goal wasn't reached in 2002. 39% participation by West Virginia voters in 2002 makes this plain.

The 1995 Fair Practices Code calls for entirely voluntary compliance by candidates, especially in the area of campaign expenditures. It asks candidates to "personally support a limit of campaign expenditures that when reasonable, sufficient and fairly applied, does not limit or restrict the expression of ideas of the candidate...but instead challenges individuals to engage in open dialogue on the issues rather than merely to purchase the excessive repetition of images and slogans." (emphasis added)

We are now eight years downstream from enactment of the Fair Campaign Practices Code. The Legislative Findings and Declarations in SB 158 make it clear that the question of excessive campaign expenditures is still yet too much with us, and still needs to be dealt with.

The Clean Elections Bill is better because its provisions are more comprehensive and provide for public funding of election campaigns. Sadly, many citizens have good reason to believe that "money buys votes." This cynical perception must change if we want to keep on making justified brags that we live in a participatory democracy where even the most humble citizen can engage in political activity and make a difference.

The Citizens For Clean Elections Coalition has been the primary proponent of the Clean Elections Bill. The coalition has twenty-three organizations in it, including most notably, the Ohio Valley Environmental Coalition (OVEC). OVEC has taken the lead in building and maintaining the Citizens For Clean Election Coaliton including leading in the crucial activity of fundraising.

Hurry Up and Wait...Again!

By Conni Gratop Lewis

The ATV bill (HB2121) passed the Senate last Friday. On Monday, the House officially received the bill, rejected the Senate changes and asked the Senate to recede. The bill should be headed for a conference committee, but it isn't. Conference committee members have not been announced, and there have been no committee meetings.

The conferees cannot meet until after the Senate officially receives the House's rejection. As of Thursday, that hasn't happened. It can be a very long walk across the Capitol, and bills can sometimes get lost in a stack of papers. What is happening is a flurry of behind doors activity involving lawyers, lobbyists, and others trying to put the two bills together into a format acceptable to those who make the decisions.

There are rumors flying about the content and fate of the bill. At any given time, the rumor might be true, and then not true an hour later. So I can not tell you what is likely to be in the bill.

Meanwhile, WVU. Center for Rural Emergency Medicine announced that 27 West Virginians died in ATV accidents in 2002. This is the highest fatality rate in the nation. Jim Helmkamp, a researcher is quoted in the AP article : "If riders follow simple safety precautions like wearing helmets, avoiding paved surfaces and riding without passengers, a tragic situation can be avoided."

Insurance Industry Doesn't Want to Play Fair

By Gary Zuckett, WV Citizen Action

The assault on citizen's rights in our civil justice system continues. After getting their way on medical malpractice, insurance lobbyists have now set their sights on liability claims across the board. Two new bills HB2872 and HB2809 are now in House Judiciary.

HB2872 would abolish "joint liability." Joint liability is the legal term for holding all parties found at fault equally responsible. For instance, if an overweight coal truck ran over your sedan and injured your family, a jury might find both the driver and the trucking company at fault. If the driver files for bankruptcy or his insurance has expired and he could not pay damages, you could reclaim all damages awarded from the trucking company.

However, if joint liability is eliminated, then the jury is required to assess the relative fault of each party. Say they rule the trucking company only 20% at fault. In the above scenario where the driver cannot pay, you are left with only 20% of your damages covered. This is not fair to victims. It favors wealthy insurance companies who can weasel out of paying full damages.

HB2809 is in the section of WV Code entitled "Unfair Trade Practices." The note section at the end of this bill reads: "The purpose of this bill is to bar third party claims against insurers for violation of the Unfair Trade Practices Act." The body of the bill adds this language to existing law, "...no claim or action may be filed against an insurer, its employees or agents alleging that the insurer, its employees or agents has violated any provisions of this article..."

In other words insurance companies want to abolish the requirement that they treat their customers (and customer's counsel) fairly. They want to be able to delay, stall, and lowball settlements on insurance claims with out fear of retaliation.

If this is passed there will be little to no incentive for insurers to settle disputed claims. If you think it's hard to get insurers to pay up now, don't let this bill pass!

The Medical Malpractice "tort reform" bill has passed both Houses and is now in a Joint Conference Committee to work out differences in Senate and House versions. The House version is much, much worse than what came out of the Senate. The message for the legislature is "Keep the Senate amendments in HB2122"

The message is simple for the two new House bills. Tell members of House Judiciary not to give in to greedy insurance companies and support your rights by voting NO on HB 2872 & 2809.

Hearing Held on Oil and Gas Rule

The House Judiciary Committee held a public hearing Friday morning on a proposed DEP oil and gas well rule, HB 2653. This rule is of interest because it codifies the current Oil and Gas commission practice of allowing companies to drill "deep" test wells without first getting surface owners' permission ("deep" wells - basically more than 5,000 ft deep - destroy an area four times larger than "shallow" wells, about the size of a square football field).

Dave McMahon, representing low-income surface owners, made an excellent presentation at the public hearing, as did Gary Zuckett who spoke of his own experience as a land owner in dealing with oil and gas companies. If you have questions about this bill please contact Dave McMahon at [wvdavid@access.mountain.net](mailto:wv david@access.mountain.net). Otherwise you might want to contact members of the House Judiciary Committee at <http://129.71.164.29/committees/housecom/hcomJUD.cfm> and ask them to amend HB2653 to require landowners' permission to drill all deep wells.

Axles of Evil: Round Three

By Julie Archer, WV-Citizen Action

You've heard the news. Truman Chafin will introduce the industry coal truck bill in the Senate, with a rafffull of fellow travelers co-sponsoring. It's greased in the Senate.

We have to kill it in the House. We killed it last summer after a massive public outcry. It's going to be hard to generate the same level of fever now, but that's what it's going to take to keep coal from running roughshod over our system of government, roads, houses, and, yes, our children.

You can send a letter to the Governor and each senate and house member from your area simply by logging on to the United Mine Workers web page at <http://www.umwa.org/legaction/wv/INTRO.SHTML> — Put A Stop To Overweight Coal Trucks and click on the county in which you reside. The letter is already written for you. All you need to do is type in your name and address and click send.

They'd like nothing better than to raise weight limits while our backs are turned, and they'll do it, too, unless we show them, beyond any doubt, that our backs are not turned. These guys heard from us all last year how we felt about it, and the fact that they're even bringing this up again proves THAT THEY DON'T CARE! So if you care at all about preserving some shred of democracy in these dark days of Bush's America, call your legislators right away! Call them at home this weekend.
